

Since 2009 the N'awlins Johnnys have been blending the grooves of classic New Orleans R&B and the city's distinctive funk rhythms with their own gritty rock-and-roll energy. Throw in blazing horns and a side dish of swamp pop flavor, and you get one of the most captivating shows in town.

Whether playing their original tunes or putting their own spin on beloved Earl King and Professor Longhair numbers, they strive to connect with audiences and spread an infectious energy that gets people dancing.

The band has two studio EPs to their name, a self-titled 2014 debut and the 2017 Lush Like Me EP (watch the video for the title track here).

You can catch their live sets at clubs ranging from Tipitina's to Le Bon Temps Roule and all over the local festival circuit, including Bayou Boogaloo, Louisiana Seafood Fest, Wednesdays at the Square, Jazz in the Park, Treme Crab Fest, and beyond.
